Synopsis

Book 4 of the "Full Heart Ranch" series -- Can be read as a stand-alone book, but reading books 1-3 will help with the back-story. No cliff-hanger. Tanner James barely remembers who he was before joining the FBI a dozen years ago, and he's okay with that. Life-threatening assignments tend to change a person, and he's learned to become whoever he needs to be in order to handle the danger and succeed in the tasks he's given. Since there's no one to miss the old Tanner, it's all working out--until his boss decides he needs to take some time off. One look into the cold dark eyes of the new volunteer at the veterans retreat center has Izzy Harding plotting ways to lighten the man's burdens, whatever they might be. Turns out that's not a job for the faint-hearted. Tanner wants to keep to himself, just doing his thing and staying safe behind the walls he's built up to ward off people like her. Not gonna happen.....Izzy's determined to be his friend, and she's not easily put off. He needs to relax and enjoy life a little, and God-willing she's going to help him do it. There are so many reasons why he should resist her efforts, but the girl is getting past his defenses. She says God is in control, but why would He care? Tanner knows he needs to pull back before she gets hurt. He has another job coming up and he doesn't need the distraction. But darkness craves light, and he craves Izzy. He can't stay. She has to let him leave. Only God knows how it will end.

Customer Reviews

Tanner's boss forces him to take a leave of absence for a few weeks from his job at the FBI so he decides to spend the time volunteering at Full Ranch. He's bound and determined not to get close to anyone, keeping his guard up. He feels the need to stay ready to return to his job at any time so he has to remain aloof, not allowing himself to become attached. In his line of work, doing so would be too dangerous. Yet, Izzy, who works full-time at the ranch, interprets his aloofness as sadness and she's equally determined to break down his defences and become his friend. Despite his best efforts not to care, "Izzy's bright, sunny, optimism was as compelling to him as a drug. He was beginning to crave it." Izzy's feelings begin to grow too but she knows he can be called back at any time and when he leaves, it will be forever. "...she was crazy for even thinking about starting something with a man who would be gone within weeks, Izzy hoped she would have the strength to heed the warning." She can't get involved with him romantically. But, she can certainly pray for him and share the gospel! Barbara Gee is a lovely writer of Christian romance. She writes with a mature voice and her stories always flow well. Her characters are likeable, modern, and engaging. The romance makes your toes curl but it's very clean. The stories are usually action-packed and sometimes suspenseful. Always a delightful read. This is the 4th story in the Full Heart Ranch series. There are no cliffhangers and the stories can be read in any order, although it is beneficial to read them all as the characters come up in different books and it's always nice to know their back stories and how they met their other half. She takes the time to unravel the story so it isn't rushed.
