This bible is awesome! This is the large print edition and the bible itself is a pretty good size. It measures about 8 x10 inches. It is about 2 inches thick and has a good bit of weight to it. The cover is a teal blue and it has a beautiful floral design on the outside pages. I do think the cover is pretty basic compared to some of the beautiful drawings inside, but it's still nice. This is the NLT translation which is my favorite version to read. Inside there are places to write notes as well as designs you can color. There are tons of things to color and they are all beautifully done. The pictures are big and easy to color for the most part. There are some tight spots like where the pages meet. This bible is beautiful even if you did not color it at all. The font is a good size and easy to read. I love how there is plenty of room to color and to write and the font is still easy to read. They did not try to jam too much on the page. I was trying to decide what to use to color with and I decided on Prismacolor Premier Colored Pencils, Soft Core, 48 Pack. I tried gel pens on one of the blank pages in the back. It did not bleed through but it was pretty noticeable on the other side of the page. With the colored pencils it is much less noticeable on the backside of the page and I also don't have to worry about it drying or smears. The pages are thin but not super thin like a regular bible. I am pretty sure a marker would bleed right through. All in all I am in love with this bible. It is absolutely beautiful and it take me a long time to color all the pages.
